Course Philosophy

Through an in depth examination of our nation's founding through the period of Reconstruction students will develop the skills and habits of mind necessary to become active participants and constructive members of society. This lofty achievement will be accomplished as students grow to understand the evolution of democracy in America, appreciate the endurance and mutable quality of the U.S. Constitution- ever ready to adjust to society's changing needs. Additionally, students will learn how society evolves to reflect ideological change, and will foster an appreciation for the struggles and achievements of those who came before us, recognizing both the benefits and costs of American progress.

Learning goals will be achieved through a variety of instructional methods and assessments including, but not limited to, chapter outlining, tests and quizzes, expository and persuasive essays, DBQs, document analysis, speeches, class discussion, debate, individual and collaborative projects, and a guest speaker series. Upon completion of this course students will be prepared for the rigors of the Advanced Placement US II course.

Course Description

Honors USI is designed as the first part of a two course series in advanced American history study. Students take Honors USI during their sophomore year, and upon successful completion, will go on to take Advanced Placement USII during their junior year. After completing both courses, the student will be prepared to complete the rigorous College Board Advanced Placement Exam in United States history. Honors USI examines the earlier part of US history from colonization through the Reconstruction period. The role of government, growth and expansion, treatment of minorities and equality, are among the recurring themes of the course. Learning goals will be achieved through a variety of instructional methods and assessments including, but not limited to, chapter outlining, tests and quizzes, expository and persuasive essays, DBQs, document analysis, speeches, class discussion, debate, individual and collaborative projects, and a guest speaker series. Upon completion of this course students will be prepared for the rigors of the Advanced Placement US II course.

SAMPLE Essay-Grading Rubric (based off of the College Board scoring rubric)

	9-8 Essay	7-5 Essay	4-2 Essay	1-0 Essay
Thesis statement and paragraph	Thesis is clear and well developed. It acts as a blueprint for the entire essay. The thesis addresses all parts of the question and is relevant to the issue addressed in the essay prompt.	Thesis is partially developed, and may address only some of the parts of the question. May address all parts of the question, but in a generalized way.	Thesis is under-developed and does not directly address the significance or relevance of the essay prompt.	This essay may paraphrase the question or have no thesis.
Historical Analysis	Essay provides ample and accurate analysis of the historical time period and relevant topics.	Provides a superficial analysis of the time period and relevant topics. Lacks in depth understanding.	Contains limited or incorrect analysis of the time period. Analysis may be over-generalized.	Contains no analysis.
Support of Thesis: Knowledge of Subject Matter/Historical Content	Demonstrates accurate and relevant mastery of a substantial amount of content knowledge.	Uses some but not all significant historical content. May demonstrate limited understanding of historical chronology.	Contains limited amount of relevant information or is off-topic. May use information incorrectly, and has little to no understanding of historical chronology.	Contains little or no relevant information, is off-topic, and demonstrates no understanding of historical chronology.
Organization/Spelling/Grammar	Essay is well written, clearly organized and may contain minor spelling and grammatical errors.	Well organized and may contain minor errors that do not seriously detract from the essay.	May contain major errors that detract from the essay. (Misuse of chronology, places, names, etc...) or serious grammatical errors.	Contains major errors in organization, spelling, and grammar that render the essay completely incorrect,
Use of outside information: (Predominantly for DBQ essays)	Demonstrates accurate and relevant use of substantial outside information.	Uses some relevant outside information.	Very little relevant outside information, or incorrectly uses outside information.	No relevant information, all generalizations, and no analysis.
Use of Documents: (Only for DBQ essays)	Effectively interprets, analyzes and appropriately uses information from more than half of presented documents	Effectively interprets, analyzes and appropriately uses information from less than half of presented documents	Does not correctly interpret, analyze, or use a minimum of half the presented documents.	Does not correctly interpret, analyze, or use the documents.
Persuasiveness: (To be used for persuasive essays)	Essay effectively persuades the reader by considering all appropriate historical content and using a significant amount of persuasive language and techniques.	Somewhat persuades the reader by using all or some appropriate historical content, and some persuasive language and techniques.	Is not very persuasive. May read more like a report than a persuasive writing piece.	Is not at all persuasive. Reads like a report, relies on summary or takes no position at all.

Any combination of these criteria may be used to grade written assignments.

In accordance with the College Board model of essay scoring, the student does NOT earn an average score of all the components, but rather receives a score comparable to the single lowest score earned in ANY one of the categories.

Teacher may create letter or number grade equivalents for scores 9-0.

Example: I am using all 7 categories. Student earns a 9, 8, 8, 7, 8, 6, 6. The student earns an overall score of 6 because that is the lowest scoring category. My grade equivalent is: 9=90, 8=80, 7=70, 6=60 etc.... Student's grade would be 60/90.
